

Both the entry and dining room strike a French mood thanks to a variety of pieces from Lolo French Antiques et More. With this theme in mind, Mimi Montgomery and Laurent Gouon used antiques that add a warmth in keeping with the home's lake surroundings. A 19th-century still life painting depicting game hunting was the impetus for the rich color palette that mixes beautifully with the patina of the room's antiques, including six French Louis XV-style dining chairs surrounding a 19th-century Baroque-style trestle farmhouse table. Rugs from Paige Albright Orientals add softness as well as a bit of graphic interest. Lucite-and-hide counter stools from Gabby Home balance out the antiques-filled spaces with an unexpected yet welcome modern touch. Beyond the kitchen, a sliding door system from Pella invites guest to step out on the screened porch.
